“ Dear Papa, I awoke early this morning before the sun rose just to pray and think of you. I heard the floorboard creak the same sound it always made when you would step on it, and I looked up expectedly to say good morning. You weren't there. Though your steps here on this earth are forever quiet, they can now be heard in heaven. I can't wait to see you again, but I will miss you terribly until our reunion. Thank you for loving me so well. There was never a time in my life that I didn't know that I was loved and cherished by you. I was daddy's little girl from the moment the doctor announced my birth to you until the doctor announced to us that you were gone...I love you daddy!
