“ We were fishing and hiking buddies. Hiking, fishing, and camping one night on the river sleeping in a 2 man tent. During the night i became very sick and before i could get out of my tent everything came up. I tried waking him up to get out but he told me to let him alone or get my rear end kicked. So i slep under the stars and next morning he woke up and was furious, He said take up the tent, turn it inside out and hold on to the rope and throw it in the river to wash it out. Good idea so i did it. Tried to pull it out but it weighed a million pounds filled with water. He rolled on the ground and laughed like crasy at me and said now i got even with you. So to prove a point i took all my clothes off, held my breath and skinney dive to the bottom wadded up tent and dragged it back to shore. The rest of the hiking fishing trip he could not stop laughing at me and let me know how gullable i was.
