“ I was blessed with the best!
I remember her kneeling down every night to pray before bed my whole life until she was too weak, then she prayed while laying in bed.
She'd read and read her Bible until she fell asleep in her chair with her mouth open.
She taught me how to play Yahtzee and Solitaire.
She played Godzilla with me on the stairs at her apartment, we would sneak like we were hiding from him even though I didn't really know who Godzilla was.
She tried to teach me to sew but I wasn't good at it. She made me a small quilt.
She made me chili spaghetti, buttered noodles, perogies, and we had chili dogs and fizzes from Sheetz.
She once spilled grape juice all over the apartment wall and it stained when Aleah and I were there, we laughed probably for weeks.
She taught me, with my mom's help, to love reading.
We hid notes for each other to find when she traveled to the Philippines.
We made lots of grape jelly together, she made me banana bread and buckeyes and pumpkin pie.
I would go up to her after church services and grin realllly wide at her wanting to go over and she always knew that was what I wanted and I don't know if she ever told me no.
We both loved Mountain Dew until she wasn't supposed to have caffeine anymore.
We made Mountain Dew apple dumplings with Aleah and they were fantastic.
She once showed up at church service with 2 different shoes on.
And once she forgot her teeth.
